Description
The Anthropomorphic Cabinet bronze sculpture by Salvador Dali. The artist transformed the cabinet into a female figure, or, as he put it, an -anthropomorphic cabinet- The female figure here is more lifelike, and unlike the Venus statue, she is depicted reclining. Her head leans forward over the partially open drawers, and her hair falls forward so as entirely to obscure the face.

You can pull out completely one of the drawers and inside you can get two funny keys.
