Description
This vintage stone lithographic poster for the 1937 Paris International Exposition was created by Paul Colin (1892 - 1985) who, along with Carlu, Cassandre and Cappiello, dominated French poster design between World Wars I and II. The four color lithographic work showing the head of liberty with her hair covering the globe against a field of black, yellow, red and blue with stars and clouds is superb. The poster measures 29" x 21" framed in black lacquer and was printed by Jules Simon, Paris
